We propose to study the structural requirements and steric hindrance at the C-5 position of the purine ring in the 5-fluorouridine-resistant mutant of Chinese hamster ovary cells (CHO) which possess mutations at the dThd (delta-thymidine) kinase locus. Our approach will be to correlate the observed 5-fluorouridine (5-FUra) resistance of mutant cell lines with their sensitivity to other nucleoside analogs. By finding various 5-FUra-resistant mutants and examining their dThd kinase capacity, we can relate their 5-FUra sensitivity to their dThd kinase activity. Thus, the mutants will be analyzed for dThd kinase activity. After isolation, we will: (1) determine the nucleotide phosphorylation specificity of the enzyme, (2) compare the stability of adenosine kinase activity of mutant cell lines, (3) determine the Km and Vm for TTP (2',3'-dideoxythymidine 5'-monophosphate) or ApMT (2',3'-dideoxy-2',3'-didehydrothymidine 5'-monophosphate) from mutant cell lines, (4) determine the Vm for the analogs of TTP or ApMT, and (5) compare the Km and Vm values for analogs of TTP or ApMT from mutant cell lines to those of the normal cell line. These studies will provide us with the knowledge necessary to develop and optimize the mechanism of action of the thymidine kinase-nucleoside analog combinations. In the long-range, it is hoped that these data will stimulate the development of similar combinations which may prove to be more effective antineoplastic agents. Most of the Classic USB Hub, has released a new version of their Classic series of hubs. They've rebranded the hubs from Belkin to Motorola and though their price is still the same, it's now called the Classic USB Hub by Motorola. The new hub, which sports a brushed aluminum backplate and has a 3.5mm headphone jack on one side and on the other side have two mini-USB ports, was released today and is available now at Radio Shack. It doesn't sound like much of a deal since they aren't selling them for a whole lot less, but I'll give them kudos for coming up with a less generic name than the Belkin Classic Hub. This new name should make it easier to locate them at a store since it says "Motorola" on the side of it. At least that's what I hope they'll be able to do. The Classic 3.5mm and Mini USB Hub by Motorola has a price of $14.99 and was released in August. About Tom's Hardware Tom's Hardware was founded in 1999 and has since expanded to cover mobile technologies, home theater and every other gadget and appliance you can imagine. In 2008, Tom's Hardware was acquired by Fun Inc and is now one of the fastest growing 'new media' sites in the entire world.
