Labeling the basolateral surface of freshly isolated small intestinal epithelial cells with ferritin. Epithelial cells from small intestine of adult rats have been prepared in a cell suspension and plated onto poly-L-lysine-coated slides. After 40 to 60 min, these cells form an epithelium exhibiting intercellular tight junctions. This epithelium is still viable, and can be labeled with 125I-ferritin introduced into the apical bath, but not with 125I-ferritin introduced into the basal bath. In addition, 125I-ferritin introduced into the apical bath can be visualized in a subset of the epithelial cells, the basolateral surfaces, demonstrating that the cell surface has been labeled by ferritin.
