Henry Mckinley Harrison II, 2, was last seen in the lobby of Rocky Mount Mercy Hospital on Wednesday. Harrison is described as a 3-year-old black male, with short brown hair and brown eyes. He is wearing a blue shirt with red hearts and black pajama pants. Harrison was dropped off Wednesday at 8 a.m. at the hospital by his mother, Angela Harris. At 10:45 a.m., the hospital called police to report that he was missing. The child was last seen on a bench in the hospital's lobby with his mother. He was still wearing his blue shirt with red hearts and black pajama pants. Anyone with information about Harrison's whereabouts is asked to call police or Crime Stoppers at (252) 344-3333.What is Driving Women into More Dangerous Sex Work? "If you are a young woman in Denver you are more likely to be a sex worker than to be a teenage mother. If you are a young woman in Chicago you are more likely to be a sex worker than a teenage mother." Advertisement The dangerous side of the sex industry is all too often an issue that female-dominated fields, like the sex industry, address only to men. And, in many cases, it can be difficult for women, feminists, and anyone else to do much to address the problem of those women working in unsafe sex jobs. "I wanted to bring awareness to it, because you don't see the drivers as much," she said. "We're just silent about it." One of the major reasons women choose to engage in sex work, as Childers demonstrates in her documentary, is 09e8f5149f
