* You start off as a poor astronomer, trying to find a job - you are not allowed to work at night, as you have to study. * From time to time a patrol ship will appear and scare you away from the field. Don't let them catch you, get your lonely telescope and head for space. * Go straight to the screen to have the most beautiful pixel-art, and play beautiful tunes. * Even in this pixel art, there are many effects, which add to the game's originality. * As soon as you pick up an astronaut or a corrupt official, you are in 'Drunk' mode. * You also have the choice of forcing your ship to land on the planets' surface. * As soon as you land, you are in 'Shit-On-The-Ground' mode. * But if you don't hurry, you will get a message from your superior. * Like all respectable superior, he is also a corrupt official, but you should not let that get in the way of duty. * If you die, you become a new 'Prisoner' of your superior and your spaceship breaks down. * You can't seem to repair it on the planet's surface, but this is no problem, as you can keep on working on it. * Pick the man up you want to save and try to get to the ship in as little time as you can. * Your fuel tank will drain down quickly, so don't waste fuel on slower spaceships. * Your fuel tank depletes from time to time, and you will have to land to fix it. * This time you will be in 'Catatonic' mode. * If you have enough time, you can play the piano with the keyboard, otherwise you will be forced to become a drunk again. * To get out of this mode you have to press a button, either the keyboard button, or the right mouse button. * When you press that button, you will be prompted to select which option you prefer. * If you like you can spam all the controls in different combinations, it will not make any difference. What's new in Dreaming Sarah OST:

Genesis and Genesis II (sometimes called The Genesis Project) are parodies of The Genesis of a New Homeworld by Blake Crouch and other works on the same topic, a parody of the book Errant Dreams: A Retelling of Dragonriders of Pern by Anne McCaffrey; a parody of the Genesis series of Star Trek spin-offs; and a comedy of manners and satire of the nerd culture of the 1980s. It was written by John Shirley, and cartoonist Bill Plympton designed the characters. Genesis is notable for being one of the first productions by Plympton, who later worked in animation and video games. Writer Evan Narcisse has stated that he did, in fact, create the costumes for the film. Plot Genesis Unicorns (or "ponies") have a culture, of which humans are just one of many tribes. During the Devonian Wakening, a unicorns called the Srugas lead the unicorns in the race for knowledge and dominance over the other unicorns, and they are set on a path to conquests that would lead to the extinction of the unicorns. The Srugas' leader, a unicorn called Starshine, has Sruga 7 design a computer-guided missile with brute force propulsion, Sruga 6 make the gyro-applicator to the missile, Sruga 5 design an anti-matter-matter accelerator, Sruga 4 design the mines the Srugas use, Sruga 3 design the meteor shields they would use, Sruga 2 design the Aegis missile that the Srugas would use to accelerate through space, Sruga 1 design the ships the unicorns would use to conquer the other unicorns, and Sruga 0 design the missiles the unicorns would use to obliterate the Srugas. While visiting Sruga 0, he learns from Sruga 9 that they intended to use this missile to form a full-scale planet-based spaceship called a "preignition device", and he is astonished that the Srugas' attempts have gone beyond those of the human scientists, who only gave the initial idea to Sruga 1. From that day forward, a Unicorn named Humanshock becomes dissatisfied with the Srugas, as he wants to be the one to rule the other unicorns, and he aims to start his mastery after them. Humanshock proposes
